For International Women’s Day, this month’s newsletter shines a spotlight on Women in Science, providing information on valuable resources such as professional networks and funding opportunities for female researchers.

Women networks
To exchange ideas, increase your visibility, and create long-term relationships that can bring mutual benefits. We share with you some of them:
- SEG Women's Network. For women in applied geophysics
- Geolatinas. Latinas in Earth and Planetary Science
- MPOWIR. Mentoring Physical Oceanographical Women

Support from the GFZ Equal Opportunity Officer
As Equal Opportunity Officer at GFZ, my team and I support female scientists by providing advice for achieving their career goals and in challenging work situations. We also offer trainings and workshops. In particular, we strive for increasing the visibility of female performance and needs for resources at GFZ. Please don’t hesitate to contact us.

Funding opportunities for female researchers
Various databases inform about funding opportunities for female researchers at all stages of their career:
- Scientific Research database
- Center of Excellence Women and Science CEWS
- German education server
